Ground Breaking Year

Davidson College has had more than its share of firsts and new beginnings this year. The fall semester brought us the brand-new Irwin Belk track and ground was broken for the campus' major construction projects. Proposals were passed and plans drawn up for the co-ed eating house scheduled to join Patterson Court next year. The concert committee successfully lured wellknown entertainers, the Indigo Girls and Jars of Clay to perform on campus. Many students are anxiously awaiting the opening of the newest dorm, West, next fall and the Knobloch Student Center in Spring 2001. The new millenium has begun, and Davidson College is keeping up with the times by updating its look.

Loving Memory

I could start at the beginning of our story but there are simply too many memories for that. Who would have ever thought: a redneck from West Virginia and a Yankee from Conneticut would have grow to be hest friends? All I know is it didn't take long for us to come around, and from there we had one heck of a good time.

Like everyone who ever spent any time with Chris, I have some stories that would make you fall out of your seat, but the memories that will stay dearest to me through the years will be the little things about him that made him so special... I'll remember Chris playing with his food at Vail Commons, using a palate of mustard, ketchup, honey, and sweet tea to make some of the finest modern art you could imagine. I'll remember him planning a romantic candle lit dinner, for he and Daisy. consisting of Pizza and Wine. I'll remember him proudly showing off our collection of molds and fungi, which we cultivated in the unwashed dishes of our room. I'll remember watching Caddyshack for the 100th time and still hearing him butcher the Dali Lama monologue. I'll remember the night, freshman year, when Chris permanently gave up sleeping in his bed - for the comfort of the couch. I'll remember the Shaggin Wagon, playing Sega till sunrise, and hearing him curse his lungs out over yet another speeding or parking ticket. Not a day will go by without me looking back fondly at the wealth of memories which Chris has left and I thank him for each and every one. ~ Adam Boyd midst the hysteria they ignite, final exams are a stressful time for the entire Davidson campus, and it is rare to find any student who can completely escape their wrath.

However, it takes little effort to discover the many possibilities that offer a diversion from the books. Some students check e-mail obsessively or aimlessly wander about the library, searching for a familiar face. Considering the incessant traffic in the library, a face is not difficult to find, although an open carrell for studying is not so available. Indeed, some students rush to the basement as early as 8 AM to reserve their study space, and others have considered sleeping in the 24-hour study room to ensure maximum cram time.

But when it all gets to be too much, students need relief. Some resort to physical activity after hours in cramped carrells, by wrestling or playing freeze tag up and down aisles of books. But often, students need to go further, and completely escape the hordes that fill every inch of library space. Many seek refuge at the Union, with ice-cream serving professors and tables of cookies behind lines spreading well into the Union Cafe. For a breath of fresh air, the Residence Life Office also provides some delectable edibles--pizza and roast beef sandwiches on Belk lawn.

But no matter your choice for exam relief, no student escapes the howls of the midnight scream, whether he chooses to participate or not. In a way, it's kind of a nice wake up call for, oh, about six hours left of studying that night.

Taking refuge from the southern sun, Rachel Stoddard studies in the shade.

dance Students soak up early spring

pring brings out Davidson's best, with the pink blossoms in the bushes and happier spirits in the students. With the warm air and vibrant blue skies, everyone emerges from their rooms to kick off their sandals and play outside.

From simply bringing homework outside to leaving work behind for an ultimate frisbee game, the beautiful North Carolina weather is a god send to the headaches and stresses of college life.

Spring Frolics is an organized event that pulls the collective sun worshipping together for a full day of, well, frolicking. Spring Frolics occurs one April weekend every year and some of the festivities include a slip n' slide, a moonbounce, jousting, a dunktank, selected bands, and great food including a progressive dinner hosted by all four eating houses and a free dinner at Vail Commons.

So, from the ideal class held outside to the more playful spirit of springtime, it is clear that this is Davidson's season.

s the fall semester winds down and exam hysteria heats up, students manage to keep their heads and brighten the winter chill with some holiday cheer.

Students celebrate Christmas in Davidson

The campus gets the best of the small town feeling with our own Christmas in Davidson celebration. For three nights at the beginning of December, Main Street bustles with carriage rides, the North Mecklenburg High School choir, and sidewalk vendors selling hot chocolate and other holiday specialties. Both students and professors enjoy weaving through the attractions with wreaths and bells and Chrismas carols in the background.

Furthermore, to augment this town celebration, Davidson hosts its own campus Christmas party where a mystery Santa Claus (this year, Kurt Yusi) sweeps down from the roof of Chambers, accompanied by elves. Nearly the entire campus turns out for the celebration, and elves hijack a golf cart, swerving throughout the crowd and spreading hoiday candy and Christmas cheer. Here, hearts and bodies are warmed with hot chocolate and apple cider, as students light candles for the occasion and chime in with the choir's carols.

The evening of the Christmas party also marks the lighting of the two large evergreens next to Chambers, which brighten the campus all season long. A much awaited tradition each year, Davidson's festivities bring students alive in the Christmas spirit.

Second scenario: checking out the scene during First Night Down, you stroll into Sig Ep and groove to the tunes of Cast Iron Filter--Davidson's own.

Third scenario: enjoying the sweet sounds of the ivories, you spend early Friday evening supporting and applauding your pianist friend at her recital at Hodson Hall.

Fourth scenario: you walk past your neighbor's room on the way to the bathroom and notice the room full of voices singing around a guitar strumming the chords of a song you know. You slow your walk and sing quietly along.

Fifth scenario: ecstatic, you dance to your favorite Indigo Girls song as they perform twenty feet away from you in Belk arena.

It is not hard to participate in the musical life at Davidson in some way or another. Whether you sing in the concert choir, an acapella group, at a church service, in a rock band, or to the radio in your room, music is in the air because Davidson students can't contain it. ith the infamous Davidson work load and the growing popularity of the investment club, one could imagine a diminished sense of creative energy on campus.

energy Artists spread variety

But there are pockets of art throughout the Davidson community that come out through the efforts of inventive students. Other than the structured environment of the Visual Arts Center (VAC) where talent and artistry abounds, the simplest Friday night poetry reading on the Union patio cannot be ignored as essential to Davidson life. One weekend, Becca Wilson organized a very successful gathering at the Living Arts coffee shop on Davidson Street in Charlotte. Coinciding with the same night as Belk's Gallery Crawl in Charlotte, the evening had students hanging from the ceiling in Living Arts, eager to see original poetry, singing, dancing, and art from their peers.

The Outpost and 900 Room have also hosted many readings and musical selections, both by invited guests and Davidson students. Furthermore, as far as studio art goes, the VAC is bustling even on weekend evenings with students working on their art or even just absorbing the creative life of the building, as they pour through assignments for other classes. Art does and can continue to thrive at Davidson, when the students are tired of just absorbing text book information and are ready to create.

hether as part of work study or just to have some extra cash in their pockets, many students keep jobs on campus. Although balancing work schedules with other priorities can be challenging, jobs can be a nice change of atmosphere and responsibility to break the monotony of many students' academic-intensive weeks.

Led by Dennis Rice, student workers uphold the Outpost Wednesday through Saturday, and keep jobs at the library, Language Lab, Admissions Office, Union desk, Student Bookstore, Vail Commons, ITS, the VAC, Baker, and more, including some spots off campus. Just on Main Street, Sherry Leverett and Adam Brown serve coffee at Summit, and Mark Jones breaks up boxes for the Village Store, for some extra cash.

or years, you could find wedding dresses, milkshakes, and gnomes on your stroll down Main Street, but until August 1998, there was no sign of gourmet coffee or tea in downtown Davidson. Craig and Vicki Blaney answered Davidson's call for caffeine almost two years ago, and since then, Summit has become an important part of Davidson's community. The coffee shop is now daily stop for many on their way to work, and a favorite study spot for a lot of students.

Summit has prospered tremendously, both by increasing the variety of coffee drinks and offering a lunch menu. Their coffees range from Timor to Costa Rica and they even feature a special "Wildcat" blend. The shop offers a very comfortable environment with two large, personable green chairs that meet visitors at the front door. In tune with the Summit motif, the walls are decked out in pictures of mountain climbers as well as the actual mountain-climbing gear. If visitors prefer, Summit also offers a wooden deck for outdoor seating and a whole other room upstairs. Chock full of comfy chairs, the upstairs hosts many parties and meetings, as well as the constant flow of students enjoying the change of scenery for studying. The room is quiet and cozy, and pictures, paintings, and jewelry of local artists decorate the walls.

Summit entertains its guests with live musicians on Friday nights and an array of board games, including the strategic and engaging game Pente. So after you've spent an afternoon checking out the gnomes, stop by Summit and enjoy Main Street's newest addition. You could be served by one of the two Davidson students who work there, Adam Brown of Sherry Leverett, and you're always in for good refreshment and company. Summit epitomizes the Main Street tradition, as somewhere everybody knows your name and they're always glad you came.

Willing to learn from each other, Sherry Leverett and David eat dinner tigether one Friday's Room at the Inn. Hosted by DCPC, Room at the Inn is a program that invited homeless people from the Urban Ministry Center in Charlotte to eat at Commons, sleep at the church, and interact with students.

reach Servicing the community

s service is valued more highly on the Davidson application than most, this campus honors a unique commitment to community work that enriches students' time here and their lives forever after.

Holding a fair at the beginning of each semester, the Reach Out committe offers dozens of service options for students to get involved in anything from the Adopt a Grandparent program to the Uptown Men's Shelter in Charlotte. Through such programs as Youth at Risk, there are a number of offerings for tutors to volunteer in elementary schools, middle schools, and high schools in Davidson, Mooresville, and Charlotte.

Students can also work with children in more than an academic context, by volunteering to be a big buddy to an elementary school student or aiding children in art or recreation at the Ada Jenkins Center.

On a larger scale, Davidson is involved with the nationally affiliated "Into the Streets" organization, and this year, our campus strove to complete 2000 hours of service in a month long "Into the Streets" program, in celebration of the millenium. In efforts to accomplish this goal, students made peanut butter and jelly sandwiches for area shelters, and sorted 45,000 pounds of potatoes to distribute to the hungry, among other things.

So, whether students are volunteering for the Project Life bone marrow drive or walking in the Relay for Life, they are always aware, involved, and committed to service on and around campus.

Construction develops campus

hough there had been rumors of a new Student Union and new dorm on campus, students were not prepared for what they saw when they returned to Davidson after fall break. Lingle was conspicuously missing (including its parking lot), and the building was replaced with a mountain of dirt and the bare bones of something starting to look important. After winter break, the road near Baker was closed and a rigid fence was built to enclose the former Johnson Gym, which seemed to deteriorate by the day.

Though these changes seemed to denote a new style of urban deconstructionism for Davidson, students need not fear. As the new dorm is on schedule to open next fall and the Union should be ready the following spring, our red brick will stay and we are truly on our way to bigger and better things.

In departure from Davidson's past fondness for hall bathrooms, this much awaited new dorm will include suites that share their own bathrooms, kitchen facilities, a considerable number of singles, and an elevator, among other features. The new Union is designed to include an ampitheater, a post office and copy center, an exercise and fitness center, a performing arts theater with over 500 seats, a new and improved Union Cafe, and more.

LEFT: Amidst dirt and dust, remains of the old Johnson Gym show progress on the way to the new Union.

After the snow, the Ice Man cometh to Davidson, where he created a mystical, magical forest of fun for a few days.

V_t SNOW Winter brings wonderland

espite popular belief that Davidson never sees snow, we had a brief taste of the arctic this January. Just after winter break, the campus welcomed several white showers which made for an abnormally cold but altogether prettier and more exciting winter.

While Duke students were sliding down hills on dining hall trays, Davidson classes were not cancelled, but the variety that the white stuff added was enough to put anyone in good spirits for a few days. Decked out in snow gear, students frolicked with snow men and snow angels and each other, making the first week of classes after break all the more bearable.

Furthermore, with snow still on the ground, a unique ice storm blew over Davidson and coated everything from tree leaves to stair railings with a thin layer of ice. Though it made for slippery manuveuring, this glass-like mystical ice forest gave the campus a new feel for a few days, before melting into spring.

In an atmosphere of meditation and praise, Mark DiCristina and Dave Tolley lead worship songs at a chapel gathering.

Community Fellowship lights up campus

hen Davidson was originally established, students were required to attend chapel at DCPC on Sunday, in addition to their already rigorous academic schedules.

Although Davidson no longer retains this strict Presbytarian affiliation, there is a huge Christian presence on campus. Whether it is through praise and worship music or organized Bible studies, many students enhance their Davidson experiences and their lives thereafter with Christian fellowship. Lots of students do actually manage to roll out of bed for church on Sunday mornings, but a variety of weekly activities allow them to enrich their spiritual lives throughout the week, as well. The DCPC Weekly College Worship group meets in the Union on Sunday nights, and Andy Baxter, associate pastor of Davidson United Methodist Church, leads a Methodist fellowship group at his house on Monday nights.

Students also attend Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) on Tuesday nights, InterVarsity Large Group Christian fellowship on Wednesday nights (with smaller family Bible study groups that meet throughout the week), and Interfaith on Thursday nights. Other students are also involved in Catholic Campus Ministries and Sanctuary, and some hold Young Life leadership positions at area high schools.

Finally, students also enjoy less organized opportunities for prayer and worship, such as chapel gatherings Thursday nights led by Mark DiCristina and Dave Tolley. Here, the drums and guitar make for a very relaxed and uplifting spiritual experience.

out Students shape up with exercise

avidson is a very active camus. On sunny afternoons, Chamers lawn is home to many a frisbee hatch, and even when the weather sn't pristine, students often break rom their studies sometime durng their day to exercise.

Baker Sports Complex offers nany atheletic options. Either in fforts to satisfy their lifetime P.E. redit or just for kicks, many stuents aerobicize the afternoon way with Step Aerobics, offered londay through Thursday from :30 to 5:30.

The weight rooms and exerise area also brew with athletic ctivity, especially popular during ainy weather that doesn't permit outdoor recreation. If these areas are occupied, students can always catch a game of pick-up basketball or raquetball, or check out the pool- a great refuge for students who need to escape the heat of North Carolina or that of the classroom.

Club sports are also a popular diversion. A variation on touch football, flickerball is a unique Davidson tradition, especially popular among freshmen. For those who harbor fond memories from their freshmen flickerball teams, they can go on to play organized (and often more competitive) flickerball as upperclassmen.

For some, Baker's offerings and the various club sports are not enough to clear students' heads and minds, and refresh their bodies. Yoga classes at the YMCA down Main Street can be just the solution, and have grown increasingly popular among students. Furthermore, for the more aggressive, kickboxing classes combine a great aerobic workout with key physical defense skills.

Finally, somewhat concealed behind Baker, Davidson's miles of cross country trails are a favorite for all types of runners, who don't mind their paths crossed by an occasional rabbit, snake, or Bobby Vagt. ew things can move an audience more than the perfect mix of harmony, soul and spunk.

acapella Generals, Delilahs sing soft sounds

When the Davidson acapella groups per form, they combine only their voices to create on harmonius whole that sweeps us all off our feet. Ofte performing outside, their sweet tunes fill the campus and isn't hard to find them--just look for their always eager crowds Both groups perform fairly sporadically--they sometimes pre pare for major events, but you can often catch them more im promptu in front of Belk, random weekday nights. The Delilahs Davidson's women's group, had a special concert to kick off th festivities of women's month, and the Generals, the male group performed at parent's weekend and the dedication of the new Union.

Just in their second full year, the Delilahs have made man improvements--always combining great spirit and fun with the tunes. The Generals released their first and long awaited Cl this spring. Always sure to please, the CD version of their per fected harmonies will allow students to carry of piece of Davidson--the sounds in the evening air--with them after the leave here. But nothing compares to watching either grou live--always a treat for all of us just waiting to be serenaded.

Graving Outpost full of spirit, flavor, fun

t's Wednesday night and here you sit: with either too much to do or too much to remotely consider doing, and you pine for some other way to divert yourself.

Just then, your neighbor peeks in your room with an offer for the Outpost and you smile to yourself as your dilemma is solved. Nachos and pizza bagels dance in your head as you grab your coat and head to the one place on campus where students can relax, procrastinate, and just kick back with a quesadilla.

Sitting in the midst of Patterson Court's social scene, the Outpost offers a unique spirit and character in a neutral territory where everyone can have fun. Live music often augments the already great refreshment, and board games and a movie screen TV ensure that students are never bored.

A Davidson tradition since 1993, the Outpost celebrates its last full year this year, as it will be closing next Spring when the new Knobloch Campus Center opens. Students anticipate an exciting new Student Union, but many will miss our one quesadilla paradise that has come to define the spirit of campus.

Cats! Go! Hey! What more needs to be said?

following Students support each other

hether students are cheering each other on at a basketball game or watching flickerball from the sidelines, an inherent spirit of support is alive throughout this campus.

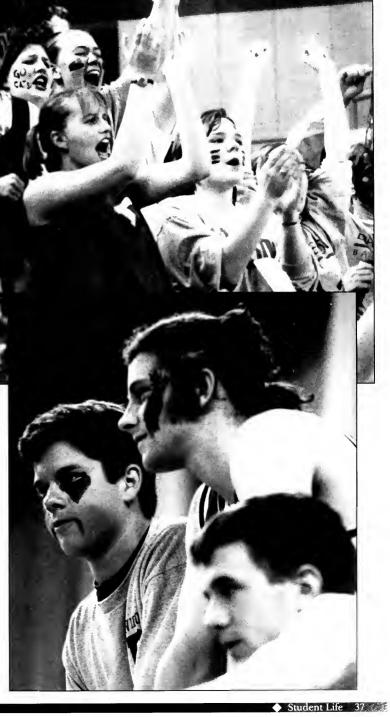

Indeed, there is a special enthusiasm and vigor that distinguishes Davidson students, whether they show it by parading Davidson gear about campus, or showing prospective students Davidson's best, as tour guides. People paint their faces and their souls red and black to support their peers, and always keep the next baseball or basketball game secure in their schedules.

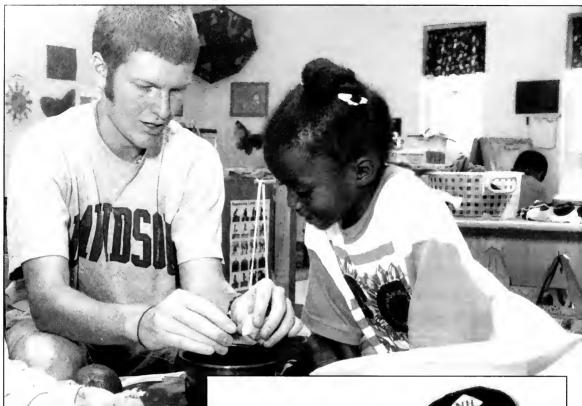

In this way, Davidson harbors a unique support system that permeates all friendships here, both on and off the athletic playing field. Visitors often comment that Davidson's people are what distinguish it from similar academic institutions, and indeed students do find lifelong friends here. Complete with its setting on Main Street, Davidson creates a tight community grounded on a distinct genuineness that appreciates a wide array of talents and fosters all types of learning. This quality of people makes the honor code realistic and makes students respect and support their peers and their professors as people they will continue to learn from when they leave this campus.

Showing his support, Kurt Yusi runs from Davidson to Queen's College in Charlotte as part of the Run for Peace marathon. The Run for Peace brought students together with members of the community, linked by their common striving for peace in the world.

OUTSICE Students aware, involved

or most Davidson students, there remains a whole world out there beyond campus paths that await expertise and hard-working hands. Always dedicated to service and the outside community locally and worldwide, Davidson has encouraged an environment where students remember that college is more than books. Despite the Davidson bubble, many students do maintain an awareness of their surrounding society, and choose to get involved and do something worthwhile with their time both on and off campus.

For example, four Stapleton interns are selected competitively each spring to spend the summer in Charlotte working with the homeless at the Urban Ministry Center. Students can choose to volunteer at the Urban Ministry Center as well as the Uptown shelters during the school year, but nothing compares to this unique experience.

In a different realm, students also show political awareness. After cofounding Davidson's Young Democrat's Club with Maggie Kozicharow, Wendy Adams spent the second semester of her sophomore year volunteering for Gore's presidential campaign in New Hampshire, Iowa, Tennessee, Washington, and Washinton D.C.

Students also stay involved with their world on campus in a variety of ways, such as writing letters for Amnesty International and creating a peace quilt, displayed proudly in the Union for months. With their time and energy for these causes, students show their interest and passion for world issues.

icking off quite possibly their strongest year ever, the Dance Ensemble showed new talent this year with unique style and advenced choreography. Led by Juila Philpott, the dancers hosted several concerts this year in Hodson Hall. and they also prepared a spirited three-woman performace to enhance the festivities during woman's month. On top of that, they livened things up at a coffee house gathering at the Living Arts coffee shop in Charlotte, where students shared music, art, poetry, and dance. Their creative flow and impressive agility is always sure to entertain, and the campus looks for exciting things from these active artists in the future.

another alternative break trips prove exciting, rewarding

hile most students spent spring break soaking up sun in Florida or relaxing at home, three groups poured their efforts into something a little more worthwhile, through alternative break trips.

Joslyn Ogden led the trip to Carretta, West Virginia, where students painted and cleaned the Caretta Community Center, an old elementary school made meeting place and daycare center. Students also participated in a meeting of the Young People's Action Council, a group of high school students trying to improve their education system.

Further north, Mark Jones and Pete Thomson led another trip to Harlem, New York, where they lived and worked at the Emmaus House, a homeless community for people who have been abused, are recovering from drug addictions, or have finished time in prison. Here, students helped move the Emmaus House into a new building, while interacting with and learning from the residents.

Finally, Jeremy Campbell led a trip to Immokalee, Florida, where students participated in several area service projects, including work at an abused women's shelter and an alternative school for girls. Students spent seven days cooking and cleaning at the Immokalee Friendship House, which provides free assistance to a large number of migrant workers in south Florida.

What A Long Strange Trip Its Been

by Sarah W. Sofia

Flash back to the Fall of 1996, the beginning or our four year adventure at Davidson. Our initiation started with the end of kegs and the implementation of the good Ol'Beast in a can. We are the last class to experience Richardson as all females and Belk as all males. Who can forget the excitement of flickerball, last night up on 3rd East, first night down, big brothers and big sisters, and self selection being the highlights of our freshmen year? As we finished our first year we felt relieved and victorious that we had lived to tell the tale.

"We Will Survive" was our echoing theme sophomore year. We took pride in the fact that we were no longer the new kids on campus. Experience was the name of the game. 1998 was the year of the "Big Dance," as the Davidson Wildcats took the title of Southern Conference Champs and qualified for the NCAA Tournament. Despite these highlights, the Sophomore slump crept up on some of us as the work load seemed to be a never ending pile and deciding on a major weighed on our minds. However, the class of 2000 managed to survive by getting involved in extracurricular activities and planning a semester or even two abroad junior year.

"Staying Alive" was our motto junior year as some of us chose the joys of being a hall counselor while others chose the thrill of studying in another country or college to escape the mundane life of Davidson. We all have fond memories of finally being legal in the basement of court parties, bars, and clubs.

As Seniors, we are "still crazy after all these years" but reality has begun to sink in. As we count down to graduation, the excitement of the basement has long faded away. The realization of how old we really are has set in. The familiar and dreaded question we have all heard a thousand times, "What are your plans after graduation," is ingrained into our brains. Senior thesis, LSAT's, MCAT's, GRE's, resumes, job searches. and interviews flood our calenders. The simple days of being a freshmen seem a lot more inviting than the cruel reality of stepping out into the big bad world. However, as Spring approaches we realize that roadtrips, attending as many sporting events as possible, and treasuring the precious time we have left with our friends is often more important than reading hundreds of pages for class. Senioritis is slowly taking hold of the class of 2000. Twenty-One year Old Night and $1.50 beer night at the Depot have become the norm for many seniors. And of course the fabulous Martin court apartments have provided a hide away for seniors from the rest of the campus. You can find seniors on their porches sun bathing til the sun goes down and partying until the sun comes up.

Cheers to the last four years and to the years that follow after Davidson.

To COUNSLER

Two things typify Junior year at Davidson College, junior year abroad and being a hall counsler. Hall counslers are the few juniors that choose to give up their chance to go to abroad during that year and take on the charge of the incoming freshman. Each pair of hall counslers takes on the responsibility of twenty to thirty freshmen and women. They plan all of their first month structured activities from mixers with other halls to hall programs and possibly even hall dinners. Hall counslers are in charge of organizing their flickerball teams, and play alongside their freshman in order to assure victory. All hall counsler duties are not always as fun though, along with the fun and games comes the responsibility of doing rounds. These juniors are so dedicated they are willing to give up part of both First Night Down and Self-Selection Night. As liasons between the incoming freshmen and Davidson, the hall counslers do a wonderful job.

Hall Counselors Susan Edwards and Erie Knoche have fun at a hall mixer.

Juniors 87

This year, the Junior class of Bonner Scholars decided to concentrate our service efforts on a global scale. With so many of our classmates abroad, we felt the need to educate ourselves about international service. Over the Winter Break, thirteen Bonners, Justin Boner, Mike Brady, Christin Cho, Candice Hall, Bo Henderson, Eric Knoche, Allen Lee, Jeff Liberstat, Clark Scalera, Melinda Spooner, Ida Wainschel, Jeremy Cambell, Angie Mills and Bonner Coordinator, Jill Williams, ventured to Costa Rica to volunteer in the Monteverde Cloud Forest. It was an amazing cultural and service experience for all of us!

We met many times during the fall to learn about the culture and language from Mauricio Sauma and Camila Peralta, who are native Costa Ricans. Dr. Annie Ingram taught us about the forest. Applying for grants and fund raising required a lot of time, as well. Until we actually landed in San Jose, there were doubts as to whether everyone would be able to take the trip. Mauricio Sauma hosted us our first night, and taught us about Costa Rican culture as we toured San Jose and met the friendly natives. The next eight days were spent volunteering in the Cloud Forest.

Our time there was wet, physically taxing, and breathtaking. If you haven't been to a rain or cloud forest, you haven't ever experienced nature like this before! In the midst of this green heaven, we completed over 500 hours of service, building trails and preventing soil erosion around research labs. Daily massages were necessary at the end of 8-hour workdays, often spent hauling 35-pound cinder blocks up the mountain. As we served the Monteverde Forest, our group becan more closely bonded. Mc importantly, we all returned with an awareness about th fragility of this amazing env ronment. We are inspired continually work to improthe global environmental sit ation, the cloud and rain fo ests, and to protect the enda gered species that we are co stantly at risk of losing foreve Our hope is that in sharin these experiences this comm ment will manifest itself others.

To Country

Have you ever wanted to experience the thrill of the highest bungi jump in the world? Hear Nelson Mandela speak? Crush grapes with your feet while sipping wine? Watch Hindu pilgrims bathe in the Ganges at sunrise? Wrestle with a water buffalo for control of your rusty bike? Have Italian clowns wish you Happy Birthday? These opportunities and more are open to all Davidson students.

Every year, more than half of the juniors spend a semester discovering the world in places like Australia, South Africa, India, Spain, France, England, Nepal, China and beyond.

Academics are less rigorous while abroad and free time is spent exploring new cultures outside Davidson boundaries. Whether it be a traditional Xhosa funeral or performing yoga every morning, these experiences open the mind. Students learn that free refills are not universal, you don't have to kill yourself for a good grade, and despite how far you travel, you will see a fellow Davidson student. Travelling abroad is an educational experience in that students have a unique opportunity to learn about other cultures and languages. Upon returning to campus, juniors have stories to tell, memories to cherish, and secrets to keep.

Twenty-ore LAST

For many Davidson students, junior year holds one of their final transitions. It is one of the last times that these students can look forward to a birthday, they turn twentyone. Though many activities at Davidson do not revolve around drinking alcohol, there are a few activities that await students of age. The on campus events include finally being able to go down to the basement at parties and twenty-one year old night. It is nice to finally be able to see what the basements of the fraternities really look like, though sometimes a little scary. Twenty-one year old night in the 900 room offers such delicacies as beer and on 40's night, malt liquor. On campus is not the only place that students can enjoy being twenty-one, in particular students like to frequent the Depot, luckily within walking distance of campus. Regardless of the activity, it is nice to finally be twentyone.

Up the Hill or Down the Hill

Up the hill....down the hill..... Ah. Sophomore year. For those who made the decision to isolate themselves from the main portion of campus and live in the palaces known as Akers, Irwin, and Knox, sophomore year proved to add a different tone to their lives. The hallowed triangle of dorms was home to the select few (or those with the worst lottery numbers)....Nevertheless, life was always a blast behind the court. Why?

1. Easy to get to from any house on the court after a LONG night, especially when a walk up the hill is not the most appealing idea at four am.

2. Easy access to the Outpost.

Satellite parking isn't so bad anymore.
 If there is a party...you know exactly where it is and how many people are there. 5. Easy to find an excuse to skip class since the walk is just sooooo long and not worth it.

Cons:

1. If there is a party....you know exactly where it is and how many people are there.

2. Walls are not exactly soundproof.

3. You brush your teeth down the hall with the rest of 'em.

4. 8:30's suddenly don't seem like a hot idea when you are sprinting out of your room at 8:28.

5. Firetrucks are twice as loud going over the speedbumps at 9am on Saturdays.

Sophomore girls, build a human pyramid in Belk, showing that students up the hill can have fun too.

Sophomore Stymps a year of tough decisions

phmore year, as we have all discovered, is the year of decisions. The ease of freshmen ar is over, and it is time to find some direction in your life. By the end of the year, all bhomores have to declare a major. Panic! You mean I can't just keep taking a little of erything? There are those who know exactly where they are headed. Then there are use who don't have a clue. Choosing a major means forcing yourself to think about here you are heading after college. Along with choosing a major comes yet another cision, who of the wonderful Davidson professors, do I choose to guide me through e next two years? Then, probably the toughest cision of all...study abroad. Do I study abroad, or come a hall counselor? Do I go through a vidson or non-Davidson program? Do I go in e Fall, Spring, or the whole year? Do I master a guage, or study in English? Where in the world I go? The choices are limitless.

Transfer Students Additions to the Class of 2002

Back in August, ten sophomore transfers began college orientation for the second time. Aloof at the prospect of hearing information we already knew, we skipped most of the programs. ### better the second time

Theme parties tend to be the most notorious nights of the year. Whether it be ladonna-rama, Glam Rock, Space Jam, or Pimp n' ho, Davidson students go all out. erhaps it is a good excuse to forget the J Crew for a while. Girls have the opportunity to ear less than usual, and boys have the chance to try on some more feminine styles. You ill find boys with make-up at Glam Rock or tights on Halloween. Regardless of what bu wear, it is a prime opportunity to escape the normal weekly grind.

Clothes that were once stuck in the back of the closet now become useful and shionable. You never thought you would die for olyester pants, leopard print anything, wigs, or pped-up jeans. The clothes you wore in the 80's o longer embarrass you. In fact, they become a ized possession. Jumping back to earlier decades ovides a much-needed twist to the Davidson roune. Coming to Davidson, not knowing a sole might seem a little intimidating at first. Of course as a freshman you do not know the number of great hall mixers that await you. Really what is a better way to meet someone than going to Ben

Department of English

The English major encourages intellectual independence by stressing creative, critical thinking combined with informed reading and interpretation made evident in clear speech and writing. Members of the Department seek to teach language and literature from a range of perspectives. Approaches include close reading of texts, performing texts, identifying historical and theoretical contexts--all strategies of reading that find their parallels in creative and expository writing, Small classes and various opportunities for independent study, including a senior honors program, are designed to engage professors and students in a lively intellectual exchange, The program provides graduates with a depth and breadth of literary knowledge while teaching them to explore problems creatively, to be sensitive to life's diversity, and to read the world critically and thoughtfully. Thus, English is an ideal liberal arts major, it also provides an excellent basis for those beginning careers in teaching, law, medicine, journalism, government, and business, as well as for those pursuing graduate study in literature or creative writing

Department of Psychology

Psychology is a broad discipline incorporating the scientfici approach in the study of human and animal behavior. Using scientific methods and principles, it teaches students to think critically and enables them to better understand their own motivations and actions. Psychology serves as a bridge between the humanities, sciences and social sciences. The discipline equips students, whatever their chosen profession or career for lives of leadership and service.

Department of Humanities

avidson's Humanities Program is an unique four-semester sequence designed for freshmen and sophomores. The program examines works of literature, art, history and theology which have helped to shapte what is known as the "Western Tradition." The program begins with the Ancient Near East and progresses up to the mid-twentieth century, which each semester focusing on a different time period. Faculty members from several different departments teach Humanities, affectionately called "Humes. Each semester has a staff of si faculty who lead their own discussion groups Occassionally, the entire clas which is limited to 96 student meets for a lecture which intended to provide back ground readings to clarify th assigned readings. Comple tion of the entire Humanitie course meets the requirement for Davidson's composition re quirement as well as the litera ture, history, philosophy an religion core requirements.

Department of Classics

very other spring the Classics De partment offers an abroad pro gram for 16 students. The program is intended to provide a study of classical antiquity and in an attempt to fulfill this goal, the group spends 14 weeks visiting selected archaeological sites and museums in Turkey, Greece, Sicily and Italy. A delegation was sent from Davidson this spring to these destinations as well as Jordan and southern France, During the course of the program, the group must travel together. However, during spring vacation the students are able to to travel and study independently in the Mediterranean region. Following the end of the program, many of the students opted to remain in Europe for a little while and travel on their own or meet up with family or friends.

Department of Anthropology

ike many of the social scinces, anthropology is often efined as the study of human ehavior. It differs from its siser disciplines in its emphasis n a holistic view of human ociety in terms of the interacons between biological, hisprical, linguistic, sconomic, lealogical, political, and familal factors.

articularly important is the omparative perspective of annropology. Anthropologists requently study foreign culures not only to understand the ogic of "foreign" behavior, but lso because of the illumination t can shed on the nthropologist's own society. Jot all anthropologists study oreign cultures however. Increasingly, anthropologists have turned their attention to the dynamics of life in modern complex societies, examining topics such as racism, immigration, "corporate culture," gender and popular culture.

Because anthropology can't master all of the various perspectives, it is often divided into four subfields: cultural, linguistic, biological anthropology(s) and anthropological archaelogy. At Davidson, geographical areas where study is concentrated are the Caribbean, Mexico, Central America, North America, Africa and the Middle East.

"Teachers prepared at Davidson will be academic role models for their students and function as mentors."

avidson's Educa tion department seeks to develop teachers who are leaders for academic development in secondary schools. To achieve the competencies requisite to this role, teacher education students undertake a program of liberal arts, a rigorous academic major, and a sequence of professional studies leading to pedagogical proficiency. Five students completed the teacher licensure program this year. The program included a student teaching stint, Soosan Calhoun taught social studies, while Katie Keller and Lee Robinson taught English at Vance High School in Charlotte. Angie Boyer and Hart Roper both taught social studies at Mooresville High School. Next year, the Education Department will begin offering an interdisciplinary concentration in Education as well as the licensure opportunity. Dr. Rudy Jackson, who specializes in school psychology and multicultural studies will be joining the Davidson Education faculty in the fall.

Department of Religion

In the middle of office house, Dr. Kayler waits for his next student appointment

The department of Religion offers a curriculum that explores the variety and depth of religious experiences and expressions. Inseparable from the fabric of liberal arts generally, the Religion Department shares in the task of cultivating a humane literacy that is responsive to the mystery and the deeper meaning of human life. Cross-cultural, interdisciplinary, and critical perspectives inform a wide spectrum of courses that study systems of belief and patterns of religious behavior, the history of religious traditions, the function of religion in society, and the forms of religious expression such as sacred narrative, scripture, theological and philosophical reflection.

Department of Political Science

This year was a big one for the professors of the Political Science department. The new chair of the department this year was Dr. Mary Thornberry. Dr. Shelley Rigger published a book this year about Taiwan and was able to make two trips there, where he was able to meet with the president. Dr. Ken Menkhaus had the exciting experience of doing consulting work for the United Nations and taught a new seminar course on the politics of philanthropy. Dr.

Peter Ahrensdorf was presented with the honor of a Fulbright Fellowship to Argentina. There were three additions to the department, two of which were Dr. Mark Nemec and Dr. Ronald Ahnen, visiting professors this year. Dr. Holloway Sparks also added to the numbers of the ÒPoli SciÓ department. Dr. Sparks, a Davidson graduate, filled in for Dr. Brian Shaw, who had accepted the position of Wall Professor in Humanities.

The Spanish Department is excited about the summer in Mexico program that is open only to Davidson students. In June, a large group of students travelled to Monterrey with Dr. Pena and Dr. Maiz-Pena to spend several weeks studying the language and culture of Mexico. AS they gain a fluency in Spanish, students are able to learn how the Mexicans live and think, why they hold different attitudes and closely examine the values expressed through the Mexican culture. ### Department of French 1999-2000 was a successful year for the French Department, which continued under the leadership of Chairman Dr. Yoder. The sole visiting professor is Dr. Buckley, who just completed his third year as the Howard B. Covington Professor. The French Department offers students the opportunity to study abroad with Davidson for a semester at the Institue of Touraine in Tours or spend a year as a fully matriculated student at the University of Tours. The fall semester and full year programs begin in Paris with a four week language course. From Paris, the students go to Tours where they enroll in their classes. A member of the Davidson faculty teaches one course each semester and assists students with academic and personal matters while serving as resident advisor. All students live with families where they are provided with two meals a day.

German professor, Dr. Denham, greets students' parents at the Parents' Weekend Academic Social

The German department saw several changes during the 1999-2000 schoolyear. Dr. McCullough rejoined the Davidson contingency of the department after his stay in Wurzberg. Dr. Henke replaced him overseas and will remain in Germany for two vears. Dr. McCarthy took a leave of absence in order to spend time with her new baby. Dr. Epes was named Registrar after a brief stint as Acting Registrar and Dr. Denham continues to write and lecture around the country.

Department of German and Russian

The Russian department is one on the rise. Growing slowly in numbers, it consists of one assistant professor, Dr. Leonid Livak who was hired to work starting the summer of 2000. The member is visiting instructor Troy Williams, who doubles as a Russian teacher and as a permanent staff member of RLO. The department is growing and and with teh addition of Dr. Livak there will be a great deal more depth to the Russian department.

Troy Williams, talking to a student on a sunny day, proves that he doesn't need to be inside the classroom to give students advice.

Department of Chinese

In the fall of 1998, Davidson College out its n for the revitalization of Chinese Studies into ion. One result was the hiring of Vivian Shen. o has since been the sole faculty member in the vly founded Chinese Department. After two rs on her own, Dr. Shen is looking forward to department's faculty size doubling with the lition of a new professor in the fall of 2000. is adjunt professor will assume the Chinese guage classes, allowing Dr. Shen to expand the gram and offer more courses. In addition to the eady popular and always full Chinese Cinema, vidson students will soon be able to enroll in inese Literature and Chinese Civilization. ming from UCLA, Dr. Shen has found Davidson be very exciting. Most of her students have little to background in the subject and she enjoys tching them learn so quickly and perform remely well in a very difficult department.

Department of South Asian Studies

The South Asian Studies Department is an interdisciplinary program focusing on Bangladesh, Bhutan, India, Nepal, Pakistan, and Sri Lanka. Students explore the arts, economics, history, languages, politics, religions and social structures of nonwestern cultures that are very different from their own. One of the opportunities that provides direct exposure to the nonwestern world is Davidson's Semester-in-India and Nepal program, which combines a period of residence in Madras and a time of travel and study to major archaeological sites in India. Conducted continuously since 1979, this study abroad program is known for its academic integrity, exceedingly qualified participants, and extensive travel opportunities. The success of the program is evident in the fact that nearly half of past participants later return to India. Students have been known to return to Davidson claiming their semester in India to have been a life-changing experience.

Dr. Thomas occasionally leads the Davidson sponsored semister in India and Nepal.

Department of Biology

The Davidson College Department of Biology works within the traditional liberal arts setting to teach majors and non-majors how to make informed decisions about scientific issues. Biology majors are provided with a basic foundation in biology which allows them to think critically about biological problems, be conversant in the language of biology, and possess technical skills that allow them to become leaders in their fields of choice. Biology majors are introduced to a broad range of biology, but individual students may select courses that emphasize departmental strengths in medicine and allied health, biotechnology, ecology, and science education.

Department of Medical Humanities

The Medical Hunanities Program proiotes an nterdiscplinary unerstanding of mediine and health care, nabling students to ppreciate the trengths and limits of ne natural sciences, ocial sciences and umanities as they eek to explain and to cheive a measure of ontrol over disease. lness and suffering. tudents witness the stitutional character f healthcare delivery, specially how legal nd political institutions influence the production, distribution and delivery of services. Medical Humanities courses emphasize the role ethical values play in defining problems as "medical," worthy of scientific study, calling for mobilization of social as well as individual resources.

One of the greatest assests of the Medical Humanities program is its alliance with Carolina Medical Center, which enabled Reid Leavitt and Kelly Carter to serve as interns to the Ethics Committee at CMC. In addition to attending monthly committee meetings, they analyzed the results of a nursing survey. The topics and cases debated at the committee meetings were educational because they included issues a medical student might face, and fascinating as they involved real people. The strength CMC/ of the Davidson cooperation is that students experience real-life applications of the ethical concepts introduced in the classroom.

Director of Medical Humanities, Lance Stell prepares his class for an upcoming review.

"The Medical Humanities Program enables students to appreciate the limits and strengths of the natural sciences, social sciences and humanities.."

Department of Physics

In the fall we moved into newly renovated facilities in the Dana Science Building and welcomed a new professor, Dr. Tim Gfroerer. Departmental assistant Ann Callahan retired after 22 years of service to the college, and Liz Syverson Barr assumed the same position. During the course of the year, four hundred students enrolled in physics courses. Dr. Cain received the Thomas Jefferson award, and senior Jim Nolen was awarded Student Winner in the 1999 annual software contest in the Computing Science and Engineering. In the spring, we hosted the North Carolina section of the AAPT meeting. The department graduated three seniors: Jim Nolen, Derek Kverno, and Jonathan Esten. Dr. John Yukich

Department of Chemistry

During class, Dr. Erland Stevens attempts to portray the shape of an orbital.

The Chemistry Department graduated thirteen senior majors and eleven minors. The Chemistry minor has grown to be very popular since its creation just a few years ago. The continuation of Dr. Beeston's Chemistry of Art and Artifacts and Dr. Brown's new Biomedical Polymers expanded the course selection this year. Dr. Brown invited medical specialists into the classroom to talk to students about their utilization of biomedical technology. Michael Elliott '71 returned to his alma mater as a featured speaker in one of the Friday afternoon Chemistry Colloquims. Michael Griffin won the Watson Fellowship as well as the Research Award from the Carolina Piedmont Section of the ACS. Arthur Sobczak, a student of the 3/2 Engineering partnership between Davidson College and Columbia University, won 2 out of the 5 Senior Engineering Awards. Bob Magnusson achieved the honor of Academic Excellence.

Dr. Merle Schuh ponders the numerous titrations his students performed for him that day in lab.

Department of Math

There were a great deal of additions to the Math department, from the hiring of a new professor to the addition to a new tenured professor. Dr. John Swallow was granted tenure this year and will remain at Davidson as an Associate Professor. Dr. Donna Molinek returned from her sabatical during the 1998-1999 year. Dr, Ben Klein gave two invited speeches this year, one in Charlotte at the annual meeting of the MAA, and another at the State Conference of the North Carolina Council of Teachers of Mathematics in Greensboro. Dr. Todd Will published three papers this year one of which was co-written with his new wife, Heather Hulett. Dr. Irl Bivens and Dr. Stephen Davis, the department chair, worked together on a calculus text book that is expected to be out in the next year. Finally, the department hired a new member of the faculty, Dr. Laurie Heyer, who brings with her extensive knowledge of applied mathematics, and is expected to bring much to the department within that field.

Department of Theatre and Speech

ove:Prepared to kill, James Flieder takes a stab a his felperformer in the Theater Department's spring producof "Life is a Like a Dream"

The department of Theatre and Speech serves the students by teaching and creating theatre as a discipline in the context of a traditional liberal arts institution. This means the students learn how to think critically and creatively about an important body of material, and how to give those thoughts scholarly and artistic expression. Instruction in theatre is both theoretical and practical; it combines knowledge and skill. Students are required to test theory in creative practice and to become proficient in devising solutions to complex problems.

The department is therefore committed to providing curricular and cocurricular programs of the highest quality which develop in students those abilities requisite to theoretical performance and public speaking. In addition, students also develop sensitivity to interpersonal relationships inherent in the collaborative process. Thus, they are prepared for a wide variety of careers in organizations and enterprises that value these qualities.

Finally, the department seeks to nurture and develop audience sensibilities and critical skills within the campus community and to bring distinction to the College through the quality of its public programs.

There seems to always be something citing happening in Davidson's music epartment, which offers a broad spectrum opportunities for students of all musi-I backgrounds and experiences. Majors id minors are provided with a substanal and thorough foundation in music hisry and theory. An impressive number Davidson students take advantage of e instrumental and voice instruction as ell as the active concert artists. The oportunities seem endless as there are nuerous forums for individual performers well as the ability to participate in both nall and large ensembles of all kinds. pen to all students is the wonderfully rich nd diverse curriculm incorporating civization to world musics; from studying the history and literature through the ages to using computers in composing and producing music. The music department at Davidson is proud of its ability to offer opportunities for all students to develop and nurture their musical skills as either an integral part of their Davidson College experience or in preparation for graduate study in music.

Pi Kappa Alpha

The Complete Greek Men of the Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity have once again had a truly divine year of fratiness. One would be hardpressed to believe that the glamorous brothers of the Beta chapter could improve on our stellar, if not umblemished, record of the past few years. Only if you had the top GPA, wore the finest spandex, drank the highest quality of malt beverages, conducted daily searches for sulfites, and treated women like only a true Greek Gentleman knows how, then, and only then, would you be invited to don the esteemed Garnet and Gold. Yet at the proud and humble Beta house, we have a saying: if you are not part of the solution, you are just part of the problem. We didn't become the pride of the ancient Greeks by sitting on our arses. We had to preserve and better ourselves, and that we have done.

Strong alumni support coupled with the ever-increasing endowment allowed us to achieve never before seen economic prosperity. Plans for permanent additions to the house, including a Swinger's Lounge and Gentleman's Club, are well on their way. Experimentation with new unbreakable ceiling tile prototypes has achieved great initial success, and has even withstood the close scrutiny of the aforementioned esteemed alumni. Our academic performance, though hard to believe, managed to improve above last year's Court-wide record of 3.92. We were so thrilled that we put aside our yows of sobriety for one special night with the lovely women of the senior class and large quantities of champagne. Not surprisingly, the stunning co-eds were swept off their feet by the combination of our excessive charm and cold duck. But as true Greek men, we never let down our guard. As the year progressed and the temperature fell, we were forced to cover our chiseled bodies with plenty of leather, lace, and mascara for the annual Glam Rock formal. The timeless music combined with the finest malt beverages and fortified wines led to a most memorable evening. Well, at least that's what they tell us. Remember, the legendary Steel Stallions were PiKA's. Many other stellar occasions followed, much to the ravishment of the Davidson community, whose attendance and enthusiasm at any and all Beta events was unprecedented.

With the burning desire and passion of the ancient Greeks welling up inside, it was quite hard for us not to spread that feeling of glee with fellow tuf-men from around the world. Despite the pulchritude and comeliness of the greater Mecklenburg County area, our brothers traveled the globe spreading good cheer and giving a few lucky souls an inside look into the enigma that is the PiKA fraternity. The Euro-Beta, Asia-Beta, and subSaharan-Beta chapters pulled stron classes once again, giving a few lucky foreig ers a glimpse into the prestigious Greek lif And thanks to the wonderful Bullen family Navarre, our fledgling chapter there got i inaugural week-long kickoff that will like never be matched. Thank you Bullens!

Not to say that we have not done our sha right here at the Big D. Our influence in t Davidson community was continually a plauded by the Davidson administration f being an "outstanding example of what fi ternities should strive to be. If we could on have a Beta-caliber performance throughc the court, Davidson would attain new leve of greatness." With such accolades, we has struggled to maintain our modesty. And fact, we have given up the endeavor altogethe

Although our satellite chapters of the 5, F105, and the Double-O have provid places of refuge, screnity, and solace, the her and soul of our beloved FRAT will forev remain in our immaculate residence at No Patterson Court. The essence of our Greekne forever imbedded in the garnet and gold wal the foos table, and the mismatched ceiling til which are all eternally protected from the l outside the wicket door.

Sigma Phi Epsilon

Brothers in Sigma Phi Epsilon are members of an organization, a fraternity, grounded in friendship and virtue. The last year saw SigEp stricken with the deaths of two of its members, Dave Farrington and Chris Malamisura, and the brothers were called upon to be true friends. The principle of true friendship is represented by one of the three cardinals of the fraternity: Brotherly Love. The bonds of friendship that are formed between brothers last for life.

The other two principles of the fraternity, Virtue and Diligence, also help to guide the actions of the brothers in SigEp. This year, SigEps were active in the Charlotte area, volunteering weekly as tutors and mentors, and working at the Charlotte Food Bank, helping to organize food gifts for the needy.

The SigEp house also saw an important change this year, as alumni supervised the building of the Farrington/Malamisura Memorial Room. In addition, the Community Service Fund was created, enabling brothers to draw upon donated funds to pay for community service projects.

From parties to community service projects, the brothers of SigEp are part of an organization dedicated to friendship and leadership.

Connor House

What a wild school year '99-'00 proved to be for Connor House! We kicked off Fall semster with "A Night in Soho" semi-formal for which most of the campus turned out. A stellar NYC skyline highlighted the black dress affair with DJ Jazzy IV Chandler and lots of go-go boots. We honored our seniors with a reverse Self-Selection breakfast. Our Steakn-Date dinner helped everyone get reaquainted with old members and welcome new faces. The Fall also saw a tailgate lunch, cookie decorating, and awesome sisterhoods.

Self-Selection weekend brought the addition of a bunch of crazy froshes and a membership increase of 66 percent. Friday morning pajama-elad Contor women congregated at 6:00 a.m. (!) to get a head start on the celebrations. Festivities lasted throughout the day, culminating in the campus-wide chaos of Self-Selection Night. Connor was the place to be-- until our speaker caught fire, that is, Firefighters, truck, and a police-swarmed house may have cut our party short, but not our fun!

Other spring events included a brief probation, but also the inception of a Wild, Wild West theme party. The house was full of tumbleweed, cacti, cowgirls, and Indians, but no music! An absentee DJ trend continued when a Screw Your Sister, Connor's spring date function, East Coast Entertainment stood us up again. Oh well . . . Connor women can always have fun, despite probation and lack of music.

Connor House seized opportunities to give back to the community through the Hispanic Community Dinner, tutoring, Relay for Life, and an Easter Egg Hunt. The house could not have done all this work without the support of a great executive board led by Darisse Bowden and Parrish Fry. Connor House has faced many challenges, but remains a place where everyone is welcome and the music never dies!

Phí Delta Theta

This year, the brothers of Phi Delta Theta, North Carolina Gamma, continued a strong tradition of campus leadership, on and off the playing field. Members of the house helped to carry the football team to back-toback winning seasons, for the first time in years. Further, Davidson baseball had an excellent season-- due in no small part to Phi's on the team. When we weren't on the field, brothers displayed a strong sense of school and team spirit, cheering all of our other athletic teams on to victory.

Members of Phi Delt participated in many other campus activities. As community service, we ran in Relay for Life, stuffed envelopes for the American Leukemia and Lymphoma Society, and helped out at a March of Dimes run, just to name a few. Brothers were also active in SGA. One brother held the position of Senior Class President. Brothers took part in a broad array of other campus and community activities. Our Home coming representative won Homecoming King, and our carnation, Katie Keller, also had a strong showing at Homecoming, taking 2nd runner-up for Queen. Aside from campus leadership, Phi Delta Theta continued to contribute to Davidson social life with many parties. Second Night Down, Phi Delt brought in its favorite band, C is for Cookie. Later in the fall, brothers performed lip synchs at Air Band-- for a standing room only crowd. The racy counterpart to Air Band, Ladies' Night was also a success. Blacklight Beach Party created summer in the middle of February and Toga Party brought C is for Cookie back to campus. Aside from all of our traditional parties, on most given weekends, you could see a gathering of people dancing at the house-- denoted by our characteristic black lights (the original and still the best!).

Overall, it has been a great year for Phi Delta Theta. We will miss our eight outgoing seniors, but a strong pledge class will help to carry on our proud tradition.

Warner Hall House

Clad in black pants and pea coats, Warner Hall girls have had a busy and fun-filled year. We kicked off fall semester with our annual crush party, packing the house with Wappa Happas and the objects of Wappa-Happa affection. We counted down the days until we could break out the cones, faux moles, and black lace for our signature Madonna-Rama-undoubtably the biggest party of the year. Our own Bungle in the Jungle attracted some of the animals of the freshman species, including those in cheetah fur and snake skin. The annual Fish Fry aka Clam Bake aka Shrimp Fest aka Oyster Roast was a success as we cut a rug with a 50's style cover band. Christmas Cocktails brought the semster to a close as Santa, our Wild Thing Tommy Knowles, shook his bowlful of jelly.

The Spring welcomed 40 new Wappa Happas. Self-selection night proved a mess as we learned the hard way that flour + water = a Pillsbury dough factory. We were going to turn up the heat and bake it, but, deciding against carbohydrate overload, we called the PiKA pledges to the rescue. Warner Hall refused to let Valentine's Day slip by unnoticed as we celebrated in candy-heart land to the music of DJ Jazzy IV. Lending our baking, selling, and racecar driving skills to the KA Karnival in April didn't wear us out-- it pumped us up for our formal that night, where we danced the night away in elegance. We also encouraged our new freshmen to become service-minded as the house volunteered its art skills at a hospital for children with cancer. Draft-A-Date was a blast once again, and we got down and dirty mudwrestling our dates. The summer came all too soon as we bid our seniors a fond farewell at the senior Roast. --Members of Warner Hall

Kappa Sigma

It has been an exciting and productive year for the brothers and pledges of Kappa Sigma. Delta Chapter. Fall rush was a success. Presently, there are 20 pledges in the KS 2000 pledge class. Under the direction of service chairman Dave Linnell ('02), the house has been involved in many community service projects including Weenies for Cystic Fibrosis, Habitat for Hummanity, and Bowling for Babies to support the March of Dimes. Other service projects are planned for the spring. Currently, brothers and pledges are immersed in a house improvement project. In addition to painting the walls and door, the plan includes the assembly of new eating table, a DJ stand, and a house sound system. The nice weather has everyone looking forward to "Spring Frolies" and Spring Formal, which will be held in Blowing Rock, North Carolina.

The Black Student Coalition

Fall of 1999 proved to be a momentous year for the BSC. There was a wide variety of on-campus events informing students and the greater Davidson community about the African Diaspora. Members were actively involved in numerous other campus organizations including SGA, Union Board Committees, and Honor Council. Also, our parents' weekend festivities were a great success. Service remained one of the BSC'c prime concerns and extended to the campus and the local community at the Ada Jenkins Center.

The year was also full of new innovations. We started our web site to inform alumni and members of the World Wide Web about our organization. The site included a message board and chat room as well as a growing photo gallery. We also aided in the planning of the second annual Martin Luther King Hofiday events.

Nevertheless, on weekends we still managed to find those precious hours to rock the house and get our groove back. Events included our semi-formal with the International Student Association, a series of forum discussions on varying topics, the impressive musical talents of our own members, and a Jazz and Poetry Night featuring the wonderful sounds of Galen.

Rusk House

Rusk had two smashing semesters again this year, starting off with the Premier "Back to School" Party. We got creative with handcuffs on Policeman's Brawl, and told the freshmen to cuff some dates (A few seniors cuffed theirs, too!). We christened the first annual Mr. Tonight Crush Party with the classic tag line: "You may not be Mr. Right, but you can be Mr. Tonight." Needless to say, Ruskies had a blast. Diehard softball fans waited out the cold morning with bagels and coffee before playing all 100 innings of Homeruns for Habitat with the Kappa Sigs. Those without superhuman endurance took naps in the outfield.

Destination Unknown brought the house to all you can eat and drink at Lancaster's BBQ. After filling up on hushpuppies, pork, and beer, it was off to the game! The Charlotte v. Greensboro minor league hockey game was a great date idea. Who would have guessed that we could have more fun 'til the busses pulled up at Jillian's. The Ruskies played all night (you mean there was a bowling alley???), and after a teensy bus fiasco, made it safely home. Bravo social chairs! 1999 also marked the first year that Rusk co-sponsored Phi Delta Theta's Airband, giving us judging rights and quite a few wonderful acts. Consider it the Lip Sync championships.

Christmas Cocktails waved goodbye to Fall, and Spring came in with a bang. Rusk threw its biannual welcome back party and moved right into Self Selection morning. Demolishing pots and pans the whole way up the hill, we rang in the Rusk class of 2003 with air horns and cheers. After a hearty breakfast and naps, our newest members were ready to go. Many bottles of seltzer water later, we cheered the last cheer of the night, for a safe and fun Self Selection.

How can we go on without mentioning the lovely ladies of PAX? When we failed to register parties, we had them at PAX! Are you on a sports team? You probably partied at PAX! And how many of us tried to pregame only to find that PAX was more fun than the intended destination? Cheers to the ten of you for being such great hostesses!

Spring term brought with it Heaven and Hell, where we learned just how devilish our little angels can be. A long week of gifts and candy ushered in Big Sis/Lil Sis night, and what a great big family we are now. Formal floors of hotel rooms and let our mature adult sides show. We showed them and more on the dance floor and had a great time. Long Neck Redneck gave us opportunity to dress trashy and embrace our NASCAR roots, while bestowing on Jamie MacDonald the cowboy belt buckle. Senior roast sent our favorite ladies into graduation with smiles and tears. What a great 23 years!

Kappa Alpha

Break out the champage and the. . . well, you know. El Nino don't come with this much thunder. The 1999-2000 year kept the Kappa Alpha freight train at full steam. When not dominating the Beirut tables, brothers excelled in Varsity sports such as golf, tennis, soccer, wrestling, football, and rugby. Entertainers were even hired for a faculty dinner down at the house. To our knowledge we retained the highest GPA for KA chapters on campus for the second consecutive year. The Sixth Annual KArnival again led the way in service projects on Patterson Court, with proceeds donated to the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Space Jam with the Brothership was again a huge success, and Klub KA featuring DJ IV had the ladies clawing for a spot in the cage.

All this to find out that, according to some sources, a KA's chance of hooking up is in the area of 976,000 to one. We don't know what bookie made the line, but we assure you that he will be sacked. The return of the Kid from Brooklyn unleashed the talent of Old Dirty Noggin', whose album will be blowin' up in Mag 2001. Seventeen new members were inducted into the Order this Spring. Although rival houses were known to use Spytech to steal our style, a 35-0 frouncing by the KA pledges of the JV pledge team in football illustrated the undeniable truth: often imitated, KA can never be replicated. Get dealt with.

Turner House

Turner girls made their presence known this year. In our second year of operation, Turner House nearly doubled in size as we worked to lay a firm foundation for the fun and service that lay ahead. We started off the year by crowning Andrew Griswold "Prince Charming." And what a prince he was-- inviting us all to his castle for a night of entertainment.

007 Party was a night for the feistiest of our girls. We celebrated our sexy, fearless side with James Bond flair. After we polished up our pad, we unrolled the red carpet and summoned the paparazzi for our "Hollywood Nights" Freshman Semi-Formal where everyone had the chance to rub shoulders with the most eye-catching of stars. Turner girls proved just what big hearts they have by waking up the next morning to put on a winter wonderland Carnival at the Ada Jenkins Center. We continued our mission of service in Catherine Turner's honor by volunteering at Ada once a week.

The year only got better as we made our house glow in the dark with the addition of blacklights and glowing confetti. We welcomed back our juniors from being abroad just in time to greet 48 new freshmen! Our tireless crew kept the Self-Selection party going for three days straight, giving us just enough time to catch our breath before our "Once Upon a Time" Semi-Formal.

But nothing could compare to the glamour and mood of our formal at the Hyatt in Charlotte. "Peace and Love" got the groove going, but it was the energy of the Turner women that really heated things up. As we say good-bye to our seniors, Mary Shell Brosche and Elizabeth Fraser, we want to thank you for what you helped to start. We're richer for it.

Phí Gamma Delta

We are sure that everybody knows who this is 11 i don't, it's Jakub Sramek in his finest hour at Liji R 199

The brothers of the Delta Kappa Chapter of Phi Gamma Delta (FIJI) are still livin' it up off-campus style at the Fiji house. Located at 832 Beatty Street, the chapter house has provided many vivid memories for our brothers, pledges, and guests this year.

Returning from summer break, the brothers spent countless hours making repairs so that the house would be able to survive yet another year as the home of the Fiji Rave, Islander, and other gatherings. Graduate brother Towner Blackstock was very instrumental in aiding us in our domestic endeavers.

Rush was critical this year. The chapter numbers dwindled last year after initiating only one new brother in the spring, but, as persistence is a vital element of life as a true Phi Gam, the brothers bounced back and have ten new pledges this spring! Our visions of a strong rush and a solid pledge class came to fruition as a result of a strong brotherhood and our rush chair Rob Hester. Service is a vital element of our involvement with Davidson and the surrounding community. In late September and early October, the Fiji brothers led a campus-wide food drive for the areas of North Carolina that were devastated by Hurricane Floyd. In addition to this, the chapter has adopted Griffith Street through an adopt-a-highway program.

In short, the Fiji boys are still getting down with their bad selves at the olf-campus house. The diversity of our new members provides us and all those brave souls that venture out to the house via the Phi Gam Tram with a constant source of entertainment. From our video game junkies to varsity athletes, academic superstars to musicians, brotherhood is key. The strength of this vital element of Greek life, which is deeply rooted in the history and customs of our fraternity, has successfully carried us into a new millenium.

Women Win 4th Southern States Title!

Men Finish 2nd in Southern States!

The 1999-2000 season offered plenty of excitement as it saw one of the men's records fall and nine of the women's. Made special by a close-knit group of athletes, led by the seniors, this season was another step in the right direction for the up-and coming Wildcat swimming and diving programs.

The women's team was led by 19 seniors: 10 women and 9 men. Members from this year's women's team are responsible for 19 of the 23 school records and over half of the men's records belong to current athletes.

Senior Mary Shell Brosche leads the way as she easily holds the distinction as the best Davidson swimmer, ever. She captured first-place finishes in each of the 12 events she competed in during four years of Southern States action, three of which she earned Swimmer-of-the-Meet honors. Brosche's name appears nine times in the record book. She holds a record in all but one event (200 butterfly) in which she has ever competed. This year's victims include the 100 fly (:59.03), 200 IM (2:06.74) and 400 IM (4:27.38). She posted a second place finish in the 200 back at East Coast Athletic Conference Swimming and Diving Championships. Her 15 firsts were a season-high for the women.

Brosche (1:00.01) also combined with seniors Britta Toleman (1:06.75), Jennifer Howard (:58.66) and Rachel Horak (53.60) to set a record in the 400 medley relay (3:59.02). The foursome landed a fifth-place finish in the ECACs. Toleman, a native of Juneau, Alaska, notched a pair of individual records. She replaced senior teammate Beth Wilson in the 100 and 200 breaststrokes with times of 1:07.26 and 2:26.45, respectively.

Sophomore Liz Nugent was simply unstoppable this season as she tore through the regular season, becoming the only diver in school history to go undefeated in the three-meter, where she captured 11 firsts. She also won 10 11 on the one-meter. Nugent also qualified for the NCAA Zone Championshi for the second-straight year where she improved her scores from a year ago a came within 10 points of qualifying for the NCAA Championships.

The women's team captured its fourtconsecutive Southern States title and landed four athletes on the All-Southe States team: Brosche, Kendra Berner, Heidi Hester, Starr Daniell and Liz Nugen. The men's team, also lead b outstanding seniors, finished third in the team standings at Southern States al a team best sixth at the ECAC's. Junior Kurt Hirsekorn became the first Davidsa athlete to win an ECAC event with his school-record 4:02.00 in the 400 IN. Including relay efforts, he had 17 first-place finishes. Hirsekorn joined Graha Gravley, Sam Kuykendall and Scott Harper on the All-Southern States team. The men fi al meets before turning the season around and picking up three wins in a y. Their strength lies in potent relay corps and freestylers. Conversely lack of divers has repeatedly come to haunt them as precious points ve slipped away in nearly every meet. A two-point loss against Emory 8-116) left the Wildcats heartbroken as they dropped a meet by two nts or less for the second-straight year. Last season Georgia Southern ivered a 114-113 loss. Consecutive losses to Georgia Tech (151-76), lliam & Mary (123-107), East Carolina (134-103) and UNC Wilmington 30-106) prepped the Wildcats for a three-games hot streak.

Coach DeSelm and the Wildcats will look to come back next season and reestablish themselves as a itamate force in Division I swimming and diving. The men will be shooting for a fifth-straight Southern States e and the men have taken a two year break since their t title. Both teams will have a new look in the 2000-01 season with a total of 19 seniors graduating.

Jennifer Howard and Elissa Weddle took the 400 women's medley (4:06.30) while Terry Dolch, Kurt Hirsekorn, Mark Medendorp and Michael Warner won the men's (3:31.62). Kendra Berner (1:57.79) and Matt West (1:45.55) captured the 200 free, while Horak (25.49) and Warner (22.08) sprinted to victory in the 50 free. Elizabeth Nugent (232.73) and Medendorp (127.20) combined to win the one-meter while the senior duo of Dolch (1:54.87) and Mary Shell Brosche (2:10.00) secured the top spots in the 200 back. Brosche (2:09.39) teamed up with Hirsekorn for the 200 IM double-win.

The Wildcats ran into a talented Virginia Tech team, as both teams suffered losses Sunday in the final regular-season home meet. The men's score was 136-94 and the women's was 145-89 on Senior Day at Cannon Pool.

Sophomore sensation Liz Nugent closed out the regular season in unprecedented fashion. She became the only diver in school history to go undefeated for the entire season in the three-meter (253.43). She was seven points away from doing the same in the onemeter (249.53), but fell just shy of Virginia Tech's Nagle.

The Hokies got off to a hot start as they won the first 15 events before Davidson's Michael Warner won the 100-yard free (47.80). Then the Wildcats took firsts in eight of the next nine events as Mary Shell Brosche (1:01.08) and Terry Dolch (52.21) won the 100-yard back. Heidi Hester (5:15.47) and Graham Gravley (4:54.40) each took the top spot in the 500-Britta Toleman (1:08.05) and Kurt Hirsekorn yard free before Nugent won the three-meter. (58.45) combined to sweep the 100-yard breaststrokes. The only other first was the men's 200-yard free

Heidi Hester and Assistant coach Leah Parrish taking time out to talk. Heidi Hester did an amazing job in all of the long distance events which she participated in.

Alpha Epsilon Delta (AED) is the premedical honor society at Davidson. In the fall, the organization started the mentor program. Upperclassmen premedical students educated under classmen about the pre-medical requirements and offered advice about how to become appealing candidates to medical school. AED also invited a cardiologist, who was a graduate of Davidson, to be an inspirational speaker at an informal cookout. Pre-medical students learned about the cardiologist's experiences at Davidson and at medical school at East Carolina. AED organized a charitable Run for Cystic Fibrosis in th spring, where participants made contributions to research. Th organization held a forum of current seniors accepted to medical school. The forum offered underclassmen valuable advice about the application process and the medical school interviev AED has served the pre-medical student population at Davidse and has made a valuable contribution to the Davidson community with the run for research Officers: President Chase Coffe Vice President Jennifer Howard, Secretary Melanie Majure, Treasurer Susan Schultz, and Historian Eliza Shuford

Precious Carter,

These pictures say it all! You bring joy whereever you go, be it Colorado, North Carolina or Georgia, to whomever you're with, be it kids, friends, or adults! May you be blessed as much as you have blessed others!!

> Much Love, Mom and Dad and Will

From the day you came into my life you have always been a source of special memories. I look back fondly on that day and all the other memorable milestones we have passed. Those memories grow more precious every year partly because my "little girl" is all grown-up now, but mostly because of the "remarkable young woman" you've grown up to be. Congratulations!

Love, Mom

To our Desirae

Your integrity, drive, genuine goodness and loving compassion combined with your experiences and exceptional education, prepared you very well for graduate school in nursing and a mid wifery profession. We are so proud of you and all your success.

The XCXVII volume of the Quips and Cranks was produced by Walsworth Publishing Company, out of Brookfield Missouri. The cover was an embossed, four color lithograph with satin lamination and sandstone grain. All 288 pages of the Quips & Cranks were produced on a Power Macintosh 7500 using Adobe Pagemaker 6.5. The divider pages were all printed in four color. We ordered 1055 copies of the book and sent complimentary copies to seniors. The book was sold on campus to underclassmen for $10. Lifetouch Photography provided all senior and underclassmen portraits. We wish to extend our appreciation to Mary Katherine Stickel, Evan Andersen, Rachel Smith, Julie Hwang, and Marty Benson for helping pull the book together during the frantic, last few days. Thank you to Tony Freeze for frequently delivering boxes of yearbooks at a moment's notice and to Bill Giduz and the Davisonian staff for supplementing our picture supply. We are grateful for the support provided Caroline Bynum and William Brown and for Gina Nossel and Mary Lib Richard's unendless encouragement. A very special thanks to Carolyn Henderson our eternally energetic and invaluable Walsword's representative and friend.
